Impact Report | 2019-2020

DOING GOOD DURING A CHALLENGING YEAR

As we all know, 2020 was a difficult and challenging year for everyone. Children's Home Society of Florida is no different. However, we can be immensely proud of how the entire CHS team not only met these challenges, but also learned lessons that have made us a better, stronger organization in protecting and supporting families. Let's review some highlights of our accomplishments.

Family First Prevention Services Act & Federal Family First Transitions Act

The Family First Prevention Services Act (FFPSA) of 2018 funds a dramatic shift in the way families at risk of entering the child welfare system are served. This change is significant and requires a transition.

Florida's previous Title IV-E waiver, which offered funding flexibility during the transition and protected Florida from federal funding losses as the state prepares for the full implementation of the FFPSA, expired in October 2019. The expiration of this waiver put Florida at risk of losing millions in federal funds for child welfare. Absent this waiver, services to 30,000 children who are at risk of entering foster care or are in foster care would have been impacted.

With our new CEO at the helm, we began the year by boldly – and successfully – advocating for the federal Family First Transitions Act (FFTA). The FFTA protects Florida from devastating losses in funding (implemented in the FFPSA) for children's services – particularly programs serving kids and families in the foster care system.

We embrace the opportunity on the horizon with FFPSA. This new direction will prioritize funding for evidence-based programs, particularly those that provide intensive services that help children stay safe at home with their families – preventing the need for foster care whenever possible. In line with this, CHS is making great strides in developing and adopting evidence-based programs serving vulnerable children.

CHS Heroes

In the midst of this transformational change in child welfare, 2020 brought a twist we'll all remember: a global pandemic.

As the world came to a screeching halt, we at Children's Home Society of Florida (CHS) experienced something wonderful. We saw communities coming together. We saw families embrace the chaos and uncertainty of quarantine – together. And, at CHS, we saw the big hearts of our teams, partners and supporters in action.

When the majority of our nation was forced to stay isolated inside, our teams donned their PPE and went out to check on families, on homeless youth, and on children in potentially dangerous situations. We made sure "our" kids had access to basic resources – including food and clothing – in addition to the services they and their families needed to cope with one of the most difficult times of their lives. These are our CHS Heroes!

Family Support Warm Line

As stress levels increased, societal and economic tensions escalated, and mental health struggles grew, our communities were in crisis ... and many people couldn't see a way through.

We know life is hard – harder still in a pandemic – and no child, no family should face these tough times alone. Children's Home Society of Florida identified a unique opportunity to meet an incredible need and created a solution to address it.

In May 2020, CHS launched Florida's only 24/7, completely free, confidential Family Support Warm Line – and made it available to anyone throughout the state. With a simple call or text Florida youth, families and individuals can reach a trauma-trained counselor who not only provides immediate counseling and support, but also helps make connections to local resources for ongoing assistance.

As societal tensions rose with each passing day, our Warm Line, our counselors, home visitors, case managers, supervisors, and leadership teams emerged to become an even greater support for children and families ... for parents struggling to talk with their kids, for youth anxious about what was happening, and for kids unsure how to cope with the stress they saw in their parents.

The Family Support Warm Line – which is completely reliant on private donations – wouldn't be possible without our generous donors. People like you. And, because of you, thousands of individuals have received the right help at the right time. What a difference this has made in lives during these difficult times!

Diversity, Equity and Inclusion

In 2020, CHS also undertook another important action. We reinforced our firm commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI). With nearly 100 team members on our DEI task force, we're examining our own systems for potential inequalities, and we're taking a close look to determine what we can do differently to better ensure every child and every family we are involved with continues to experience equitable treatment and opportunities for success.

Our Community Partnership Schools™ model is a prime example of our focus on those most in need, but we know there is much more that can be done for children in our communities. It cannot be done in a silo, and we remain firmly committed to collaborating with our partners so the families we work with – and others – benefit from this effort.

Going Forward

Even amongst all of our progress during a particularly difficult year, there is still much to do. The past year has taught us that our work is more important than ever. More kids are counting on us. More families are turning to us. And our communities are relying on us to lead by example.

We will continue to be there for them.

We are in this together. Thank you for being part of our journey of doing good.

This crisis threatening the future of Florida's children is the expiration of a federal funding waiver that has allowed Florida to invest in intensive services proven to keep kids safe at home – and out of foster care. ... For thousands of kids, this waiver has been the saving grace that's kept their families safe, strong and together.

Hundreds of children in foster care joined forever families through adoption in the western panhandle just last year. But, when the adoption finalized, their story certainly didn't end.

Long after the ink dries on the adoption papers, forever families overcome new challenges and celebrate their children's successes alongside Children's Home Society of Florida.

As we celebrate National Adoption Month, it's the perfect opportunity to remind our community – especially families touched by adoption – that lasting support is right here. You see, while each child's adoption journey is unique, many face tough obstacles, including developmental delays and lasting trauma.

Opinion

Point of View: Seeing the good amidst the uncertainty brought on by COVID-19

In the midst of so much uncertainty, so much fear, I see so much good.

There is good in the essential work that must continue. Our first-responders, health care workers, gas station attendants, grocery store clerks, maintenance professionals, janitorial workers ... they show us the good every day. We know that's truly only the tip of the iceberg.

There is good in families who are spending more time together. They're riding bikes together, brothers tossing the football in the front yard, and blocks of chalk art are drawn by children jumping in to do their part to spread joy. Indeed this time will be permanently etched in a child's memories much like some of us remember other historical events.

But families are also carrying the overwhelming stress, anxiety and strain caused by unexpected job losses, unpaid bills and – now – multiple kids at home 24/7. They are seeking calm in the storm.

For them, there is good in the unsung heroes. Hidden amongst all this good who fly a bit more under the radar ... the child welfare case managers and child protective investigators who protect vulnerable children. The home visitors who support struggling families. The counselors who provide literal lifelines to children coping with mental illnesses. Children's Home Society of Florida has more than 1,000 of these professionals who wake up each day to serve those in need. And there are thousands more throughout our state.

With CHS, families can find the stability, guidance and practical tips they need to make it through another day. They find the compassionate listener who offers the advice that gives them hope for today, steps for success tomorrow.

These unsung heroes are also on the front line. While many can connect with children and families through technology, some children still need to be seen. Child welfare case managers still go out day after day, night after night to place eyes on children who – without the services these professionals provide – could be at risk of suffering abuse or neglect. And when a foster child was in the hospital last month, our case manager was right there with him.

To all of our heroes, the first-responders, the families and the unsung heroes, thank you.

The good will always shine through the shadows. And there is so much good shining in our communities.

GOOD in Action

The COVID-19 pandemic impacted us all over the past year ... and you made sure Florida's kids and families weren't alone during the most difficult time of their lives.

Because of you, families had somewhere to turn: Children's Home Society of Florida.

5,000+ kids, teens, adults and their families received immediate access to trauma-informed counseling and support.

Just weeks into the pandemic, we saw a need – and met it with our Family Support Warm Line, Florida's only free, confidential, 24/7 statewide counseling and support line.

Students and families found support, basic necessities and connection, just when they needed it most.

Our 20 Community Partnership Schools:

- Canvassed neighborhoods to connect with those in the greatest need;
- Provided families with meals;
- Helped connect students to online learning resources to combat learning losses, provided access to affordable health care and counseling services; and
- Connected students and families with tools and support they needed to succeed in their "new normal."

We never stopped meeting the need. We connected to our families in all of our programs– virtually and safely in-person – to help ensure our kids were safe and healthy.

Not even a global pandemic can get in the way of our GOOD:

- We safely reunified 1,043 children in foster care with their families.
- We created forever families for 769 kids through adoption.
- We provided ongoing support, guidance and education to children and families in our early learning programs through 6,000+ visits.

STUDENTS EXPERIENCE ONCE-IN-A-LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY AS SENATE PAGES

For the 12th consecutive year, CHS sponsored eight youth to serve as Senate Pages during the 2020 Legislative Session. Students at our Community Partnership Schools at Evans High School and Edward H. White High School spent a week in Tallahassee for an in-depth, hands-on experience in politics.

Shadowing senators, attending hearings and sharing their personal stories offered these students a chance to see how they can influence positive change. In addition to securing the Senate Page spots for our students, CHS provided students with a clothing allowance to purchase professional dress for the experience, transportation to and from Tallahassee, and safe, comfortable lodging with caring host families in Tallahassee. Special thanks to Senate President Galvano for partnering with CHS to make this possible!

EARLY CHILDHOOD SERVICES

We empower families to create safe, strong, solid foundations so their children can grow up in healthy, nurturing homes.

Many parents we serve grew up in difficult or dysfunctional homes and want something better for their children. Others are struggling to break out of generational cycles of poverty so they can provide more opportunities for their families. And some simply lack a strong support system as they embark on the most challenging – albeit rewarding – journey of their lives. Yet all share the desire to create the best possible home for their children.

As CHS helps children enter kindergarten ready to learn – empowering parents to guide their kids toward developmental, cognitive and social milestones – we also embrace the future of the entire family.

Feeling the trust and support that other people provide is something that motivates me a lot, and also when people are trained in the area and they carry out their work with so much love. COUNSELING AND MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

Trauma, grief, depression, anxiety, bullying, domestic violence and a host of untreated mental health issues can significantly impact children's educational, mental, social and physical well-being, as well as their family peace and stability.

CHS provides children, families and individuals with personalized treatment and support to equip them with tools, coping skills and connections to resources so they can find hope, stability, and opportunities for happiness and success.

In 2020,

COVID-19 catapulted us all into uncertainty ... especially kids already struggling with anxiety, trauma, grief, depression and more. As their familiarity disappeared, their struggles intensified.

Because of your generosity, CHS jumped in to meet the needs of kids and families by launching the only free, confidential, 24/7 statewide family support line.

CHILD WELFARE

Families struggling with significant challenges – including generational cycles of neglect, poverty and/or abuse – may become involved with the child welfare system if children's safety and/or well-being is at risk.

In nearly 75% of the cases, children enter foster care due to neglect, which often stems from fixable family issues including substance abuse, or a lack of access to medical or community resources such as housing or food assistance.

When families become involved in the child welfare system, CHS protects children by helping to ensure they're in safe, stable homes with relatives or other loved ones, foster families, or other proper placements during their temporary stay in foster care.

Additionally, we connect children with necessary services to help them work through their trauma and to stay connected to their families, friends, schools and other therapeutic supports.

As we focus on children's well-being, we also work with parents to help them overcome challenges that led to involvement with the foster care system so they can bring their children safely back home. If safe reunification isn't possible, then we work to find forever families for children through adoption.

Because of you...

Thousands of Florida students arrive to school with more than a backpack - they carry baggage beyond their years: hunger, homelessness, poverty, exposure to violence, mental health struggles, inadequate health care and more. They carry so much weight that they simply cannot focus on their education. Often times, these students and their families lack access to opportunities their neighbors and peers may have. For these students, it's not about raising the ceiling – it's about raising the ground floor.

No two Community Partnership Schools are exactly alike; each addresses needs unique to its community so students can focus on their education and future success. But all share a similar model with proven methods for accountability and outcomes.

Community Partnership Schools improve student behavior, increase academic gains and graduation rates, and enhance parental involvement. The model helps to provide learning environments that offer equitable opportunities for all students. CHS is a founding partner of the model, along with Orange County Public Schools and the University of Central Florida.

A new student to our school asked if he could join the afterschool programming. When I asked him why he wanted to be a part of the program, he told me that learning was hard for him at his previous school, and the other kids made fun of him if he asked questions. He asked me if he could have someone tutor him because he wanted to be able to make friends in the classroom ... he didn't want other kids to pick on him because of his learning ability. He wanted to be able to raise his hand and answer questions during class participation.

He started tutoring and began to make gains in his skill level. He is in fifth grade and was on a kindergarten level in reading. I am happy to say that he has made many great friends and his reading level has increased to a third grade level.

Giving wasn't enough. I wanted to get more involved, so I joined an advisory board to learn more about the needs of CHS. It is critical to listen and seek to understand what are the challenges and opportunities that organizations like CHS face as they try to serve our community. After two years of sitting on the advisory board I was able to develop a program that leverages the strength of the Orange County Public School system coupled with the support of CHS to develop a pipeline of future leaders of my company. While the program is still in development, we are excited to explore the possibility of offering jobs with full medical benefits and tuition reimbursement to diverse and deserving talent already being served by OCPS and CHS. The possibilities are endless...all we need to do is invest our talent, our energy, our passion, and our money as needed, but it is more than just that...it is caring and believing in a brighter tomorrow.

Andrew Duffell
CHS State Board Member

I wanted to get more involved so I joined the Board of Directors and focused on advocacy by telling people why I care about CHS' mission. If we help people going through tough times now, our society will be stronger and more productive in the long run. By sharing the need with my friends and colleagues, we've secured more financial support for our mission, complementing our state contracts.

Samuel P. Bell, III
CHS State Board Member

As a member of the Florida Legislature and Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, I was in a position to see the needs of children across the state. While government was active in funding services for children, it depended on private and charitable groups to shoulder a large part the work in helping kids. From my vantage point, Children's Home Society of Florida stood out above others in helping children in need. So when I retired from the Legislature I joined the Board of CHS so that I could give more than money to help.
