A PROGRAM OF

Did you know domestic violence is the most common danger in child abuse and neglect cases across the US?

It's why, in partnership with the University of Central Florida's Institute for Social and Behavioral Science (ISBS), Children's Home Society of Florida developed Partners for Safe Families™ (P4SF), an initiative to serve victims in care.

By more quickly deploying appropriate interventions, including enhanced training, evidence-based screening, safety planning and counseling, organizations can help lessen the trauma and level of risk to victims and their children.

Positive Psychology through Happiness

Growing evidence reveals that monitoring and increasing happiness is essential to a fulfilled, positive life. To explore further, Children's Home Society of Florida developed Positive Psychology through Happiness (PPH)™ - a new intake tool - and HAPPINESS Curriculum - an intervention framework for behavioral health service providers.

Led in partnership with the School Mental Health Collaborative (SMHC) within the USF College of Education which found the program to meet sufficient standards for rigor to permit designation as an "Evidence-Based Alternative" post-treatment.
